

GIDDINGS AND GERRIT SMITH.—JOSIAH R. GIDDINGS writes for the Ashtabula Sentinel the following account of a visit paid Gerrit Smith. “Visited Gerrit Smith, that friend of humanity, so generally known throughout the United States and Europe. It is undoubtedly difficult for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but I well be surprised if Mr. Smith does not well be qualified. He is the only rich man with whom I am acquainted, that has no wealth for the poor, but instead of himself and particular friends. I was struck with the order the perfect system which he has introduced into his whole business. I heard no complaint of unfaithful servants, or dishonest stewards. On the contrary, the family spoke of all around them with kindness, affection and love; said they were all religious, conscientious people. I was told there had been no intoxicating liquors in that village for twenty years. In the evening there was a party at Mr. Smith’s, composed of merchants, mechanics, and laborers. Mr. Smith appears to have inspired all with his own Christianity. All appeared affectionate and happy, and I left that little village as well as Mr. Smith and his family, with a better opinion of human nature than I first met them.”

DISTRESSING DEATH.—A daughter of Mr. Samuel East, of New London, aged about four years, on Thursday last week, being near the kitchen stove upon which was sitting a teapot of scalding tea, seized hold of the vessel, placed the spout to her mouth, and drank a swallow, which caused her death on the day following. Death was a great relief to a childlike sufferer, as well as to her parents.
